Firebrand Community Music Workshop

Anyone can make music, everyone is creative, and we all have something to offer. Firebrand Concert Series believes that music can enhance people's everyday lives. We believe that music is not only fun, but has the ability of transcending boundaries and overcoming challenges.

If you've always been curious about making music, or have wondered how to unleash your own creativity, we invite you to join us in the Firebrand Community Music Workshop, which aims to bring together people of all musical levels to share in a fun-filled learning experience! Over the course of three days, we will explore music from many different angles. Firebrand members will teach two different songs for voice by American composer, Aaron Copland and English composer, Benjamin Britten. Firebrand will lead improvisation activities based on ideas from these historic composers, as well as lessons on basic note-reading and notation. There will also be opportunities to collaborate with the Firebrand ensemble, and at the final concert we will all come together on stage to share what we've learned and created. Whether you are a seasoned musician or someone who is just looking for something new to explore, the Firebrand Community Music Workshop will change the way you hear music! Please join us in our community-building adventure!
